Group To Visit Daniel

Governor To Cite Western Week In Proclamation

A delegation of Western Week enthusiasts is heading for Austin and the Capitol Building today to receive a proclamation from Gov. Price Daniel.

About three carloads of Western Week boosters, Chamber officers, and Junior Chamber men will meet Gov. Daniel for the proclamation that will officially open a state - wide program of publicity for the July 11-16 Western show and week.

They will be greeted by Gov. Daniel, staff members and photographers to record the proclamation.

Chamber Manager Jack DuBois said that Chamber officers, Cameron Saddle Club officials and committee members of the combined Western Week show will make the trip.

"We're going to wear our ties and maybe a few Western hats," DuBois said. "And a number of beard growers will be in the group."

Thus far, Western Week has laid plans for a wide - open, week-long extravangaza July 11 - 16 to boost the Cameron Saddle Club's sixth annual show for gaited and quarterhorses.

Prior plans to take a pony express ride to Austin to meet the governor did not materialize, so the delegation idea came forth, DuBois said.

Local merchants report that interest in western wear is increasing each week nearer the show, still a month away. Bumper stickers are available at no cost at the Chamber office for boosting the program.

Shaving permits are due in any day, DuBois said, for wearing around Cameron during July.

The event has captured enough interest in Hearne to bring that city to planning a Western Week Club and the Little League Ladies one week ahead of Cameron's.

One Dead, 9 Hurt In US 77 Collision

Car Carries 8 In Crash With Pickup Truck

A Liberty, Texas, Army reservist died Saturday in a two-vehicle collision on US 77 near Cameron that injured nine other people.

The highway tragedy, the fourth Milam traffic fatality, involved a 1960 pickup driven by a West Columbia man and a 1959 Pontiac driven by another Army reservist, George Otto Odum, 41, also of Liberty.

Officials of the Texas Highway Patrol said that eight men, all Army reservists on week - end pass from Fort Hood, were riding in one car.

DEAD WAS: James N. Matthews, about 23, of Liberty, a passenger in the 1959 Pontiac, of injuries.

INJURED WERE: Odum, of Liberty, minor injuries.

James C. Parker, 25, Houston owner of the Pontiac, fractured pelvis.

John Settle, about 23, Houston, minor injuries.

Robert Ellisor, 24, Liberty, minor injuries.

Gordon Gross, 23, of Shepherd, Texas, fractured pelvis.

David Thigpen, 23, Houston, minor injuries.

Jimmy Dubose, 26, of Clevland, Texas, minor injuries.

Gerald Emmett Mann, 23, West Columbia , driver of the pickup minor injuries.

Patrol officials said that all 10 persons were rushed to Newton Memorial Hospital by ambulance from the scene of the accident at the intersection of US 77 and FM Rd. 485 about 3.7 miles north of Cameron.

The collision occurred 1:10 p.m. Saturday at intersection of the two roads with Odum driving east on FM Rd. 485 and Mann going north on US 77.

Officials said the group of Army reservists, on a two - week summer camp tour at Fort Hood, were apparently going home on weekend passes.

And Mr. and Mrs. Mann were apparently moving since their pickup was carrying a load of household goods.

Ambulances rushed the group to the Cameron hospital where Matthews, the only fatality, succumbed to his injuries.

The other seven reservists were transferred to Fort Hood Monday, hospital officials said. Mr. and Mrs. Mann were released over the weekend after treatment for minor injuries.

State patrolmen rated the Pontiac almost a total loss and the 1960 pickup a total loss.

The front of the pickup collided with the rear side of the Pontiac.

Patrol officials said circumstances of the accident still were under investigation.

E-Tex Minister Assumes Pulpit At 1st Methodist

The Rev. Earnest Jewell Strong, former pastor of the Mineola First Methodist Church, has assumed his duties as pastor of the Cameron First Methodist Church.

He succeeds the Rev. E. J. Davis, who assumed the pulpit at the Mineola First Methodist Church after about five years in the Cameron church.

Rev. and Mrs. Strong, and their daughter, Ann, 13, have established residence at the church parsonage 101 Seventh St. She will be an eighth grader at Ada Henderson School.

Rev. Strong attended Lon Morris Junior College, Jacksonville, Texas, and Southwestern University, Georgetown, before going to Southern Methodist University and earning his bachelor of divinity degree there.

He has served the past three years at the Mineloa church and the previous seven years at the Rusk First Methodist Church. Rev. Strong said he had served as pastor in a number of East Texas churches since going into the ministry in 1940.

During his ministry, Rev. Strong has been active in a number of district church groups and civic organizations in East Texas.

Top Poultry Judgers

Milam Wins State

The Milam County 4-H poultry judging team has won the Texas 4-H Poultry Judging Contest for the third time in four years.

The four-member team and Coach J. D. Moore, Milam County agent, will go to the National Invitational contest in Chicago in November.

Scoring 1,926 points, the Milam County team outpointed second-place Brazos County by 39 points.

Team championships were not the only honors of the day for Milam County's poultry judgers.

Arvell Jungmann topped the individual field at Texas A&M with 661 points. Other team members ranked high in the state competition.

Curtis Fuchs garnered 639, Barbara Barta 626 and Joyce Fuchs 608.

In their last trip to Chicago for the national competition, Milam County entries ranked high in the toughest poultry judging competition in the U. S. The last team ranked about 12th in minal judging.

A perfect score total would have been 2100 points, Moore said.

"Milam County's showing reflects the hard work and many long hours of practice put in by these four youngsters," Moore said.

Vote To Consider School Mergers

A school election at Sharp and Buckholts schools has been called for June 25 to consider a merger of the two dependent district systems.

County Supt. H. D. Maxwell told The Herald that both school boards have met and called for an election on a merger of all 12 grades of both schools.

And he said that community meetings have been held on the subject by Sharp and Buckholts residents.

Maxwell said that Sharp had approximately 140 students and Buckholts had about 180 students in their systems.

In other county school news, school patrons in the Gause District voted 59-4 for a 50 - cent per $100 valuation increase in school tax for local maintenance .

Gause has eight grades in the school there. Highschool age students attend classes in Hearne.

Maxwell noted that there have been no school district consolidation since 1958 when Marlow and Ad Hall Districts agreed to incorportaion in the Cameron Independent District.

He said that San Gabriel and Thorndale Schools are expected to hold a consolidation election to consider a merger of San Gabriel District with Thorndale.

If a consolidation is voted by a majority in both Sharp and Buckholts, Maxwell said, both schools would still maintain their physical plants.

Both districts have $1.50 per $100 valuation tax rates, the same as the Cameron Independent District.

Board Approves Bids For Football, Pressbox Ideas

The Cameron School Board approved bids for 1960 football equipment and heard a report on improvements recommended for the Yoe Field pressbox.

Board members also discussed the possibility of Buckholts High School students' transferring to Cameron if the Buckholts community wishes them to attend Cameron's Yoe High School.

New headcoach Billy Bates presented a list of bids from about four athletic equipment firms for helmets, game suits and other equipment. The board voted to approve the lowest bids on each group of items.

And Dr. S. H. Richardson reported on the need for improving the YHS Field pressbox and fertilizing Yoe Field for the new season.

The board asked the administration to provide information on a practical, larger pressbox and future needs for a small fieldhouse to improve the physical education program of the school.

Also moved was the appointment of Dr. Earl Knebel as interim school superintendent from June 20 to June 30.

Schigut also asked that present Jaycee members attend the meeting in reorganizing for a more vital program in the young man's group.

Ol' 101

With F. M. L.

CELEBRITIES — Cameron hosted the renowned Glen Miller band Saturday for lunch. Now led by Ray McKinley, a former Miller musician himself, the band popped out of their air - conditioned scenicruiser looking for a place to eat.

The younger set may not be impressed by the name, Glen Miller. But in the day of the big bands, Miller's aggregation was tops. He was the amiable fellow who went out on a flight over the English Channel during World War II and never came back.

101 - 101 - 101

The latest Miller edition looked much like the traveling musicians they were.

Sidling down the street with the inimitable casualness of professional musicians ("cool man cool"), the Miller boys spent perhaps an hour in this Milam County seat.

There was a lacking in the used-to - be "bop" cuts of post - war days and the heavy tailoring of zoot clothes. The group gave more the impression of a bunch of college students.

But that is beside the point. They can make great band music if they can claim the Glen Miller tag and work under McKinley, one of the better pop musicians of his day.

101 - 101 - 101

The group was going to Houston that night, returning to Fort Hood for an engagement the next day, and then hop by one-night stands all the way to New Hampshire in two weeks.

It is regrettable, in a sense, that the big bands lost favor with the swing set. They were supplanted by vocalists and small combos because big bands cost too much money.

Then came Elvis "Pretzle" and his entourage of mop - haired morons who blighted popular music for five years. The army finally helped Elvis grow up and the U. S. slowly is regaining its musical sanity. But in the process, a generation of teen - agers hardly knew the capabilities of popular music under the tutelege of fellows like Miller, the Dorsey brothers, and other name band leaders.

Hospital Fund Reaches $39,511

The Newton Memorial Hospital fund drive reached $39,511.50 Wednesday in pledges and contributions, Advisory Board officials reported.

"Most of the businesses of Cameron are responding nicely and are contributing to the Newton Memorial Hospital building fund," board officials announced.

Minimum goal for Cameron's share of the $350,000 to $400,000 project is $50,000.

"The present total shows a response to the urgent need for immediate help in raising the minimum amount of money for the hospital project," one spokesman said.

The fund gained about $5,000 since last week. Bids for the 28-bed propect are to be let as soon as Cameron reaches the $50,000 mark.

A federal grant will provide from $160,000 to $200,000 for half of the construction cost of the project while another $60,000 is pledged contingent upon successful completion of the Cameron area's goal, officials point out.

Plans call for a 28 - bed, one-floor hospital plant on a site north of the present Newton Memorial Hospital building.

Advisory officials have noted that the project may be lost and the present facilities closed if the $50,000 minimum is not raised is a short time.

A total value of about $600,000 has been set on the whole hospital plant and site when the new structure, a four - wing fire proof masonry building is completed.

"Contributions and pledges already received are greatly appreciated," advisory board officials said. "We feel that Cameron will see its faith justified in helping build a modern Newton Memorial Hospital in the place of the present structure."

Cameron Responds With Much Clothing For Chilean Needy

Response in Cameron to the appeal for clothing for the disaster-stricken people of Chile was heartwarming, Milam Red Cross officials reported today.

Richard Moseley, Cameron chairman of the American Red Cross, said that 535 pounds of clothing were contributed, marking a "fine spirit of co - operation by many groups who made the project a success."

Moseley said the Red Cross set up the project and Cameron ministers announced the need in city churches. Presidents of community church women's societies called for group workers who served part of each of the three days of collection.

And the Chamber of Commerce assisted along with Central Freight Lines, Inc., which delivered the clothing to Waco.

Moseley said the need was still great for clothing and aid for two million Chilean people left homeless by the worst combination of tidal waves and earthquakes in South American history.

"If anyone has good, winter clothing to contribute, it will be accepted at the Milam County Health Department this week." Moseley said.

City Youngsters Are Enrolled For Summer Swimming Lessons

Twenty-seven coughing, sputtering and yet quite proud youngsters have dominated Cameron's Public Swimming Pool the past week under the watchful eyes of pool attendants.

They floated, glided and fought their way through the water as all seven through 10 year olds do. Yes. You guessed it, we are talking about the tedious job of teaching a youngster how to swim.

Watching from the bank we noticed plenty of improvement from the first lessons two weeks ago.

"It's not as funny as it was two weeks ago," say Make McDermott, "these kids are really learning how to swim now."

Though still only able to swim short distances, these tots are not just picking up, but learning the real fundamentals of swimming. They are instructed only by the ablest people.

Ray Green and Make McDermott, pool attendants are both registered life guards and have completed courses in life saving and water safety as well as teaching swimming lessons.

"Don't lunge in, just shove yourself off the wall" is the phrase most used by Green as the 200 pound former All-State football player stands a few feet from the pool's side and awaits with open arms for the tots swimming toward him.

While Green's teaching the pro and con ways of stroking, McDermott has his hands full demonstrating how to float in case of exhaustion.

Tuesday marked the first day the group made an effort to use their hands in stroking, though the wild and woolly "water boys and girls" were a little awkward at first, it didn't take long for an extra brave student to try and out do his pals, usually ending up in the rescuing hands of Green.

A bus full of students were on hand from Rosebud while several were on hand from Rogers. Cameron made up the rest of the group

White Sox Edge Out Lions, 9-8

Danny Monroe, Stanley Boyd, H. Hollas, R Bradley, B. Perrin, C. Weems, and K. Smith accounted for the Lion scores.

Rickey McGoldrick, T. Tucker, J. Barton, S. Zalesky, J. Bowman, J. Nochlinger, and S. Williams tallied for the winning club.

T. Barton was the winning pitcher, his catcher was J. Barton The losing battery was Smith and Weems.

View On Sports

By ROBERT MANN

With summer comes the great outdoor life enjoyed by many in the form of family picnics, boating water skiing and fishing.

This is why we feel the need for stressing the importance of every child as well as adult being able to swim.

Ray Green, manager of Cameron's Public Swimming Pool has invited any adults interested in adult swimming classes to contact him in due hope that a schedule can be set up to inform the oldsters on water safety.

Green asked to be called at the pool, not his home. The number is OX7-9243.

VOS

Baseball's in the air and at a height never before achieved by Cameronites.

Tiny Tot teams, Little League Babe Ruth, 17-19 year old boy's teams, two adult men's squads, CYC softball, and to top it off women and girl's squads are in the making.

A new baseball field adds to the splendor of it all and crowds that top all previous Cameron attendance records.

No one knows just how it all came about, but it's here, and here to stay. This puts to shame remarks made in the past of, "Cameron could never do it" and "It couldn't be done not here." with community support, hard work, and a little luck here and there, Cameron not only competes with neighborning cities but surpasses them.

MILAM COUNTY'S

Farm Scene

County Agents Notes

June 1 Brings Cotton Blooms

The first cotton blooms reported were on the Delahunty farm in the Silver City community soon after June 1st. Blooms were noted the week of June 6 to 10th in the Frank Shafer cotton on the Henderson Farm.

It may appear a little early to mention cotton harvest in view of the fact that we have had only wo weeks of weather warm enough for "ideal" cotton growth, but authorities tell us that we can expect open bolls in cotton 50 to 65 days after the date of bloom. In this case we should have early cotton beginning to open during the first week in August.

Spotted rains this week helped crops where it fell. Around an inch of rain down the Little River from Cameron helped crops a lot. Other sections of the county still needs rain badly.

Insects situation in cotton is better this week. Heaviest migration of fleas was during the first week of June. Fields poisoned since that date are looking good. Punctured squares are appearing as a result of the overwintered weevils and farmers are urged to start making square counts to determine the percent of damaged squares.

This may be done by walking diagonally across the field and pull 100 squares at random. Examine the squares for weevil damage and if 15 out of 100 are punctured, poison applications at 5 day intervals are recommended.

Grasshopper infestations will get critical in the next two weeks. Since hay supplies are low, attention should be given to hay meadows to prevent damage to badly needed grass for making hay. Good controls are reported by using Aldrin or Heptachlor at the rate of one pint per acre. Dieldrin or Toxaphene at the rate of one quart per acre will give good control.

Bagworm control time is here - Bagworms are active in all parts of the country. The time to obtain control of these pests is when they are young. After hatching, the larvae immediately starts to feed on the foliage of ornamental plants. The young worms spin a silken bag about themselves and as they feed attach bits of foliage to this bag. The worms carry this bag with them as they move about. When the worms are grown, this bag is one and a half to two inches long and affords the worm almost complete protection.

In September the female worm deposits her eggs in the bag and then dies. The bags should be picked from infested plants and burned because the eggs for next season's worms go through the winter inside the bags.

Ten percent toxaphene or 4 per cent malathion dust as a control. Lead arsenate, toxaphene or malathion spray can also be used. Refective only if used when the worms are young.

Texas Livestock Production For 1959 Increased

COLLEGE STATION — Texas livestock production for 1959 showed a sizeable increase over 1958 production, according to Lloyd Bergsma, extension livestock marketing specialist.

Mohair production in Texas set a new record in 1959. An increase in the average mohair price coupled with an increase in production resulted in this new record, the specialist explained. During 1959 Texas accounted for 97 percent of the U. S. mohair production.

Texas again outranked all other states in beef production. Although cash receipts and total poundage for Texas showed an increase in 1959, Iowa exceeded Texas in gross income from cattle and calves. Bergsma explained that Iowa's larger gross is the reult of the intensive cattle - feeding industry in that state and in shipments of cattle and calves.

Hog, wool and sheep and lamb production in Texas all showed an increase in 1959 over 1958.

In commenting on the market outlook for 1960, Bergsma said heavy market supplies of most classes of cattle have forced the market lower, thus making for a delicate market which reacts quickly to adverse weather or other unfavorable factors. Marketing of stocker and feeder cattle will continue heavy, and this could reduce expected heavy runs this fall. Lower priced feeders will fill the feedlots, the specialist added.

Reduced hog slaughter will result in a strong seasonal price advance, and efficient producers will be in a good position to take advantage of this increase.

Larger supplies of slaughter lambs will dampen the effect of a seasonal price advance. Increased competition from lower priced beef will influence the lamb price downward, the specialist concluded.

Three 4-H Girls To Attend Camp

Three girls from Milam County will attend the State 4-H Camp which will convene in Huntsville, Texas at the State 4-H Camp Site, June 28-30.

Three girls are Clara Mae Moore, Valara Green and Joyce Malone of Gause, Texas.

Clara Mae Moore and Valara Green will represent Milam County in the State Dress Revue. Clara Mae has won first place in the County Dress Revue for the past two years. Valara Green is second place winner in the county this year.

Applications For Cotton Classing Service Due August 1

Cotton farmers who have not already filed applications to receive free classing service and market information for their 1960 crop have until Aug. 1 to apply for these services.

Applications should be filed with Jimmie B. Russ, 5205 Airport Blvd., Austin 5. Russ is in charge of the Agricultural Marketing Service's area office which include 77 East Coastal Bend, South Central and Southwest Texas counties.

Procedure for preparing and filing applications have been considerably shortened and simplified this season. "However, promptness in filing is necessary, as time is needed for each group to arrange for submitting samples to the classing office," Russ said.

Applications and instructions for applying may be obtained from Russ' office or from the county agricultural agent.

Head Smut Major Threat To Grain

COLLEGE STATION — Head smut disease of grain sorghum occurs in all areas of Texas. Losses are likely to range from 0 to 50 per cent in the Coastal Bend area of Texas. The disease, in recent years, has been buildingup in other areas, and losses of 5 to 10 percent are not uncommon. The value of badly infested land is lowered.

Close examination of the stalk near harvest is necessary to determine disease loss. With many infected varieties and hybrids the head is sterile. In such cases, the blackish, powdery smut is found by pushing the leaves aside and checking lower on the stalk. On other varieties and hybrids the main head will be smutted and destroyed.

In harvesting a badly - infested field, smut comes from a combine in a black cloud. When the smut gall first appears, it is covered by a whitish membrance. The membrane soon breaks and allows the black dust (spores) to be scattered by the wind and rain. The fungus disease overwinters as spores in old plant trash or in the soil. The follwoing spring and summer the spores germinate and produce smaller spores of another type, which in turn, infect the sorghum plants through the roots. Te fungus grows up through the roots and stalk to complete its life cycle. Infection of the root may occur at any time during the growth of the sorghum.

In the absence of grain sorghum, disease spores in the soil gradually die. However, some can remain alive for an undetermined number of years.

4-H Club Notes

By Robert W. Hoermann
Ass't County Agent

Milam county had the First place Poultry Judging Team at the State Contest at College Station, June 8th. Arvell Jungmann, Buckholts, was High point man at the Contest with a score of 661. Barbara Barta, Cameron, Curtis Fuchs Buckholts and Joyce Fuchs, Cameron, scored well to put the team in First place. J. D. Moore, county agent, coached the winning team.

Henry Tomasek, Jr. and Larry Hillman, Ad Hall community, placed Fifth in the Poultry Production Method Demonstration at the State Contest.

Leo Rozner, Ad Hall, paricipated in the Tractor Driving Contest.

Michael Rek, Milano 4-H Club member, placed in the Red ribbon group at the Washington County Dairy Day Show. Dairy animals from several surornding counties were exhibited a the show.

Adolph Schramm and son Franklin, Thorndale community, picked up information and containers for soil testing. Soil testing will save the farmer many dollars by showing the exact amount of fertilizer required to produce high quality crops.Excess fertilizer will not be put into the ground

Franklin purchased one of the high quality boars bred by Nancy Baggett through the Sears Swine Program. The boar should help improve the meat type and quality of the hog in the area.

Quite a few garderners have contacted the agents for control of insects on garden peas. An effective control for most insects on peas is two tablespoons of Malathion to a gallon of water. Through coverage of the plant is necessary to control the insects.

Each summer many people lost hogs due to the heat. This loss can be stopped by building brush arbors at least five feet high so the air can circulate through.

A cotton spray nozzle producing a fine mist will help keep the hogs even cooler. This arbor can have either a concrete or sand floor. A clay floor will not be as effective or as sanitary as the sand or concrete.

Remember to keep plenty of fresh, clear water before the hogs at all time. A hog will not drink enough hot, muddy water to keep cool.

4-H members with Sears and Farm Bureau gilts should worm their gilts as soon as possible. Use a commercial mix of piperazine or hygromycin. If sodium fluoride is used remember it is poisonous and following directions carefully is most important.

Calvin Shenkir, Buckholts, wormed his gilt before the large intestinal roundworms of Ascarid could do any damage.

Horstman-B. L. Davis Vows Read In Austin

In a double ring candlelight service at University Church of Christ Austin, June 3, Miss Lea Marye Horstmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Horstmann, 3004 Hemphill Park became the bride of Bradford Leroy Davis of Houston at 7 p. m. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Davis of Woodville. After a brief honeymoon trip the couple will be at home at 2808 Hemphill Park in Austin.

Graduated brass candelabra holding white cathedral tapers were used in the background and flanked the altar. An A Cappella Choir directed by Ralph Conrad Immel of Dallas gave the wedding music and the minister, Mr. Harrison A. Mathews, performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of cameo toned peau de soie fashioned in a princess silhouette. Overlays of Alencon lace reembroidered in seed pearls and irridescent sequins formed the bodice, which was designed with scalloped neckline and cap sleeves. A bustle bow at the back of the skirt opened into a chapel length train. Her antique veil of handmade Brussels lace was fingertip length, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white rosebuds and lavendar orchids.

Miss Anna Lois Horstmann served her sisters as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Lunette Davis of Houston, sister of the bride groom and Miss Anne Rose of Danville, West Virginia, who was a classmate of the bride at the University of Texas. The attendants were dressed identically in short formal gowns of lavendar silk organza over matching taffeta ,styled with sweetheart necklines, cap sleeves, and boulfant space - pleated skirts. They wore matching tinted pearl tiaras with tiny veils of illusion, and had short white gloves. Each carried at single burning taper in the cener of a nosegay of Crown Asters in shades of lavendar.

John Paul Scott of Dallas was best man. Groomsmen were Luther Davis, brother of the bride groom and Jerry Fuller of Huntsville. Donald Elliott and Bill Smith of Houston were ushers.

For the wedding the bride's mother chose a sheath dress of rose beige silk shantung and a tiny hat made of matching petals tipping with pearls. She wore a white cymbedium orchid corsage and had black patent accessories. Mrs. Davis chose a gown of champagne beige chiffon styled with a pleated skirt and fitted bodice. She wore matching toned lace hat and had a green cymbedium orchid corsage. Her accessories were in bone.

DAR Members Urge Proper Use Of Flag

Flag Day Tuesday, coupled with the recent addition of the 49th and 50th states, brings reminders from Milam county's Sarah McCalla Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, on flag ettiquette.

DAR chapter officials remind that while the 5 star flag is now the official flag, it is perfectly all right to fly an old one, provided it is in good condition.

When the United States flag is displayed, the DAR urges that it be done properly. Here are some rules summarized from the official flag code:

In a group of state and local flags the U. S. flag should be in the center, or at the highest point.

While another flag, with crossed staffs, the flag should be on its own right, its staff in front.

Horizontally on a wall, the Union or blue field should be on top to your left as you face it. Hang the flag flat.

On an automobile, from a staff attached to right side of bumper.

Vertically from window or wall, the Union of the flag is on top, to your left as your face it.

In the audience, the flag is on the right end of the first row of the audience or congregation.

From a staff: Displayed from a staff projection from window or wall, thte blue field should be to the peak of the staff, except when at half mast.

In line with flags of other nations: The flag goes to its own right and is hoisted before state or other flags. Flags should be of equal size and the staff of equal height. Flags of different nations are always flown at the same heigh, and on separate staffs.

Oklahoma Test Case . . .

The issue of metropolitan vs. rural interests in road building continues to be a problem in states where cities are mushrooming.

An example of the problem has developed in Oklahoma where Gov. J. Howard Edmondson is urging removal of a percentage of county road funds to the use of the State Highway Commission. This would allow, through provisions of a state law now awaiting a vote, state officials in Oklahoma to control funds from county taxes to be used in either building state or county roads.

A similar situation exists in Texas. As metropolitan centers continue to grow in representation, laws favoring use of more state funds in those areas come nearer passing with each session. The end result would mean fewer new county surfaced roads, say, in Milam County, and more funds for, say, Tarrant County, centering around metropolitan Fort Worth.

No effort has yet been made in Texas to pull any county funds into state control for use where the Texas Highway Commission sees fit.

If legislation directing more road funds to the booming metropolitan areas were to pass, rural counties in need of greater road development would suffer the loss. Milam County, now enjoying one of its best road building programs in years, would be one of the first to feel the metropolitan drag.

Texas is rated near the top in point of road construction and maintenance. This has come about through excellent administration of the Texas road program.

Unless the rural counties are watchful in these matters, however, the normal shift of emphasis to the populous areas may cost small counties continued good roads programs.

Gov. Edmondson, the youngest governor in the nation, is attempting to enact legislation that would improve Oklahoma's highways. Yet, he is from Tulsa and would naturally be interested in greater road development in the metropolitan centers in Oklahoma, Tulsa and Oklahoma City.

There is another issue to be considered in the use of county funds. It is, of course, the matter of centralized government. If the states are using large sums of federal money to build roads, the federal government gains position in designating location of the big superhighways. The same would apply in state vs. county interests. If ever the county allows state use of its funds, in whole or in part, we can be assured that state direction will eventually take precedence over county.

It all means greater centralization of power in bigger government, further from the direct controls of the ballot box.

If the American buying public continues its interest in the smaller economy cars (expected to be about 40 percent of the market in a few years), the need for the spacious lanes may be considerably less than it is today.

Federal highway funds are derived from taxes on the sale of petroleum products. If that income goes down, so will the amount of highway assistance from federal sources.

This would suggest the problem of either raising taxes on gasoline at the federal level to maintain its program or rearranging the system between the county and state levels to provide adequate roadways in the states.

What could come out of all this is the discovery that counties eventually would have to solve their own roadway problems anyhow. And, to look far in the future, the day might come when air travel and air freight by helicopter and airbus on the short hall may eliminate the need for even more complicated road networks.

And then how would all the ribbons of concrete help us? Only in the local sense, around the cities. And these road problems should be resolved with city and county funds, not with funds of the general taxpayer.

Oklahoma's decision on use of the county road-building funds and state jurisdiction may well be a test case for the nation. We watch with interest.

Speculation Turns To Legislature

By Vern Sanford

AUSTIN — In looking forward to the 57th Legislature, speculation now centers on (1) who will be elected Speaker of the House and (2) who will get important Legislative committee assignments.

Speaker's race is following the pattern of two years ago. Both Rep. Wade Spilman of McAllen and Rep. James Truman of Gober claim sure victory. Each accuses the other of claiming votes from members that aren't actually pledged to him.

It takes votes of 76 of the 150 House members to win. Actual election takes place when the Legislature meets in January.

Committee assignments will be made at the start of the session by the Lieutenant Governor for the Senate and by the newly-elected Speaker of the House.

Make - up of committees is of crucial importance since an unfavorable committee can, by delay or disapproval, bring almost sure death to a piece of legislation. Lawmakers themselves attach much personal significance to their committee assignments, usually regarding chairmanship of key committees as rungs up the political ladder.

But this year some members are saying, either jokingly or seriously, that they'd just as soon pass up top committee honors. They note a high casualty rate in the campaigns among last year's key committee members.

Among those who lost out were Sen. William Fly of Victoria, chairman of the powerful Senate finance commiee; Sen. Floyd Bradshaw, member of finance and other important committees; Rep. Max Smith, vice chairman of the House state affairs committee; Rep Frates Seelingson, vice chairman of House revenue and taxation committee.

Leadership can have a high price tag, one member observed. "Some of those committees, like state affairs or taxation, get nothing but hot potatoes. You make a batch of enemies with every bill."

BEACH SUIT FILED

Attorney General Will Wilson has joined Nueces County officials in getting a court order to stop barricading of beaches on Padre Island by private landowners.

Action stems from the open beach bill passed by the Legislature las hummr. This law, hotly debated, affirmed public ownership of beaches and guaranteed public access to them.

Padre Island Land and Development Co., which put up the barricades, claims property rights up to the water's edge as a result of a Spanish land grant.

Another suit has been filed at Galveston where a similar situation developed.

Final decision on who can go swimming where will hinge on court interpretation of the law.

TIDELANDS STUDY URGED

Jerry Sadler, Democratic nominee for land commissioner, has suggested that careful study should be made to determine what action the next Legislature should take to insure legal and orderly development of Texas tidelands.

Sadler suggested the state should chart its course carefully to avoid the possibility of any more divviculties in the management of its submerged lands. Recent U. S. Supreme Court ruling that state ownership extends 10½ miles from the shoreline ended a 15 year tidelands battle.

First thing, said Sadler, will be to settle by law where the shoreline is so the tidelands boundary can be established in relation to it. Also, the boundary between Texas and Louisiana coastlines will have to be definitely determined. Court decreed Louisiana owned tidelands for only three miles out.

Congress Working On Minimum - Wage Law and Time Clocks For Tractors

Dear editar:

According to an article I read in a newspaper which fell out of a teen - ager's car as he rounded a corner out here near my farm yesterday, Congress is working on a new minimum - wage law, but I couldn't find a word about a minimum wage for farmers.

I was talking about this with a neighbor this morning and he said he had been giving some thought to this problem too and had concluded the way to solve the farm problem is to pay a farmer a guaranteed wage.

"Yeah, but how you gonna figure out how many hours he works?" I asked him.

"Easy," he said. "I already figured it out. Just put a time clock on his tractor, one on his barn etc., and at the end of the year he'll have an accurate record of how many hours he worked. Then the government could decide how much per hour he ought to haveto hold his own with steel workers,T V. repairmen, auto repairmen, etc. figure up how much he got for his crops, and send him a check for the difference."

Now I have no objections to getting checks from the government, they're hardy, they're neat looking, you can cash them anywhere, but I would like to say right now I have absolutely no use for time - clocks. I just don't want any accuate record of how many hours I spend on a tractor It's un - American. It's non of the government's business.

Farming is sort of like editing a newspaper. How would you like to have to punch a time - clock every time you sat down to your typewriter? With the clock running only while you were actually typing? Farming is the same way. If you're entitled to sit and stare at your typewriter, why don't I have the same right to sit and stare at my tractor& Or my grubb, or my ax, or anyting else? You don't pay yourself by the number of sheets of paper you run through your typewriter do you? No. and I don't want to be paid by the number of trips I make up one row and down another.

Editing and farming both ought to be kept on a high intellectual level.

Yours faithfully,

J. A.

(Conclusion of story of Old Rip)

What was the scene which the waiting audience beheld? The three stories of the courthouse had been leveled. All that remained, besides the basement, was the floor of the first story – and a jagged section of wall, some eight feet high, immediately above the cornerstone. By this time many persons were standing on the floor of the old structure; others were perched on a mound of debris in the yard but most were on the ground. Heads were thurst from the upper windows of the buildings overlooking the square. Fully 1,500 were present and eyes were directed, from all sides, from above and from below at the cornerstone as the drama began.

A cable was looped about the wall and the end was attached to a truck which began to tug. But there were warning shouts; the wall and the cornerstone were so firmly attached that both threatened to topple. So a worker perforated just above the cornerstone, then the truck began to pull again but, once more, both wall and cornerstone, were in danger of falling. A second time, the worker pled the pck and when the lne again tightened, the wall fell, leaving the cornerstone in place.

All of this I saw as I stood nervously in the fringe of the crowd. Not wishing to be a target of the jibes and perhaps anger when nothing was found, I walked across the street and entering the bank building, climbed the steps to the second floor. Just as I entered the office of a friend, there was a roar from outside and a man in the window shouted, "They've found the frog!" I rushed across the room and just then there came a louder roar and the watcher exclaimed: "And the d—thing's alive!"

When the wall had been torn down, a worker, with a pick, broke a layer of cement – an important bit of circumstantial evidence. With the layer of cement removed, a metal covering was revealed. The lid was lifter. The Rev. F. E. Singleton, pastor of the Methodist Church, who had been standing beside the cornerstone, peered in, then pointed and said, "There's the frog!" Gene Day, an oil man, took out the creature, flat and dust-covered and handed the apparently lifeless frog to the minister who in turn gave it to Judge Pritchard. Gasping the animal by a hind leg, the official held it high so that all could see and there was a cheer.

Then Pritchard saw the other hind leg twitch and the creature's body began to swell as he obtained his first breath of air in thirty - one years! That was when the greater roar arose. Excitement gripped the crowd and those in the back pressed forward so there was danger that the frog would be knocked to the ground and trampled. County Motorcycle Officer Bob Hammett took the creature, forced his way through the crowd, got on his motorcycle and rode to the edge of town to allow the excitement to subside.

The news flashed around the world. Some scientists scoffed but Dr. William T. Hornaday, former director of the New York Zoological Gardens, who had explored many parts of the world, including the Southwest, declared the feat was quite possible. Many West Texans came forward with incidents in their own knowledge of horned frogs surviving long periods without food or water. Arthur Brisbane commented in his front page column, "Today," with an audience of 15,000,000 or more Preachers told about the frog from the pulpit. He inspired poems and editorials.

On Page 1 of a metropolitan journal appeared the following without dateline or word of explanation: "First Straphanger -- They say he was flat as a dollar. Second Straphanger -- Well, you would be, too, if you'd had a whole courthouse resting on your chest for 31 years." It was said that no achievement by an individual,except Lindbergh's long flight across the Atlantic had ever received as much newspaper space. Old Rip, as the frog was christened, was declared to be the most famous animal since the serpent in the Garden of Eden.

Some weeks after the cornerstone opening, spring began and the hibernation season ended, vast numbers of horned frogs made their appearace. Thousands were shipped to the North and East, and even to foreign lands, as souvenirs. A representative of the United States Department of Agriculture warned that, because the creatures kept in check insects which were injurious, natures balance was in danger of being upset; and there was a proposal that the Texas Legislature bar the shipment.

Meanwhile, Old Rip had gone to Dallas to be exhibited in a theater but Judge Pritchard, claiming the frog as county property, ordered his return to Eastland; so he was brought back. After some weeks, Old Rip set out on a tour of the nation. In Dallas, he was "arrested" as the theatrical promoter had sued, alleging breach of contract. Will Wood - (remember the lad who had originally owned the creature?) – arranged for the frog's freedom on bond and the trip continued. In St. Louis, 40,000 persons filed by in a single day, a record for that city's zoo for an individual attraction. In New York City a news reel with sound (this was in the early days of "talkies") was made, with Will Wood doing the talking; a crew of eighteen men was required and the cost was approximately $5,000.

It was in Washington that the frog achieved his greatest triumph a call on Calvin Coolidge in the White House. Incidently,through a misunderstanding, theEastland frog kept the president of the United States waiting fifteen minutes. Old Rip looked at Coolidge and Coolidge looked at Old Rip. Neither spoke. At last the president broke the stillness, "Silent Cal" had met his match.

The frog returned to Eastland and Wood kept him at home in a bowl. One day a "norther" struck and the layer of sand and rocks in the bowl was inadequate to shield him from sudden and intense cold. When Wood went to feed Old Rip, he found the frog lifeless. The date was January 19, 1929. He had lived eleven months and one day after emerging from hte cornerstone.

Is the story really true? M. W. McMinn, a merchant in nearby Olden said he saw a live frog placed in the cornerstone in 1907; and Ernest Wood said he saw it placed there. And thirty - one years later, hundreds saw the corner stone opened and a live frog removed.

In the lobby of the present courthouse stands a glass tomb and several thousand persons each year view the frog's mummy which, it has been said, will last as long as the mummies of the Pharaohs. Above each entrance of the temple of justice there is a star and between each point there is the sculptured likeness of the frog and so it be truly stated that the beauiful five - story courthouse of brick and stone is a memorial to Old Rip, the horned frog that is a legend.

Johnson, Poage Discuss Issues

Senate . . .

Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson called Sunday for a review of this nation's relationship with other countries "in the light of today's conditions."

Johnson, in a weekly report recorded for broadcast in Texas, commended government action which sped aid to earthquake - stricken Chile.

But he noted that, "Unfortunately, our diplomatic relations with some countries of Latin America have been on the decline."

The Senate referred to deterioration reations with Cuba and said this was "symbolic of a situaion that benefits no one."

"It contains a threat to the future of all of us. It is a trend that must be stopped. It is a trend that must be reversed," he said.

Johnson called for a review of attitudes and policies.

"Our relationship with these countries of Latin America -- our hemispheric neighbors -- needs to be studied in the light of today's conditions," the Senator continued.

He noted that retaining the friendship of other nations "takes patience . . . . it takes understanding. Above all it takes work." He said these qualities were displayed in sending aid to Chile.

"We offered this help the way all help should be offered -- because it was the right thing, because it was the neighborly thing to do," he said.

Since all sales for foreign currency actually have the effect of a loan (unless we agree to restrict our use of the currency, I think that it would be much better, in most cases, to simply sell on credit than for local currency.

If such sales are to be attractive to underdeveloped countries, they must be made on long time and at a very low interest rate. In addition, we must be willing to guarantee delivery of specific amounts at definite times. Without this assurance, no underdeveloped country can dare to rely on this country as a source of vital food or fiber. I think we can very well afford to give such assurances in order to know that we have definite assured markets.

Since the underdeveloed countries all hope to develop their economy, they feel that they can afford to buy on a credit just as our young people feel that they can buy on the installment plan -- and just as our young people have proven to be pretty good credit risks, so most young nations are good risks, if someone will do their banking on a businesslike basis. I can see no reason why we cannot afford to extend 40 or 50 years credit for these surplus commodities. Surely, unless we do this, we are actually making "sales" which are too often but "gifts."

Even long time credit is of no help to a small country if the interest rate is so high that there is no prospect of repayment. Russia offers 2 per cent interest on many of her sales. I know that many people will rise up and shout that our government is paying over 4 per cent for money, and will then ask if I want to "subsidize foreigners."

Before answering that, I want to call attention to two or three facts (1) We need to sell hese surpluses. If we can' move them, they are likely to wreck our farm program (any farm program). (2) We are "subsidizing foreigners" both directly and indirectly through our present programs. We are selling for less than the world price. We are selling for foreign currency and then agreeing that we will not use it freely. We are actually giving the currency back to the purchasers. We are paying frieght to deliver our surpluses to foreigners.

I propose that we sell at the world price, without any subsidy except favorable credit terms. I think we can afford these favorable terms because I know that it is costing us about 14 or 15 per cent of the value of our grain stocks, stop this 14 per cent carWould it not be better to sell these socks, stop this 14 per cen carrying cost and get even 2 per cent interest than to continue to put out 14 per cent per year? Our Agricultural Committee has been trying to work out some such bill.

SAFETY FIRST

With the vacation season underway, and long weekend-the 4th of July-coming up, a lot of you Cameron folks will be taking a drive on the busy highways.

Let's all make a resolution to drive carefully both in the city and on the highways. I know all of us would like to see our friends, and have our children back in school when the vacation season is over. One way to do this is to be extra careful when driving on the streets and highways. Just remember that there are thousands of cars more on the road each year. This means more accidents and deaths. It may take just a little more time to arrive at your destination safely, but its better to be safe than sorry. When you drive don't depend on someone else to do the thinking for both of you, and don't take chances. Remember too, that the life you save, may be one of our good Cameron citizens.

VACATION TRAVEL TIPS

If you plan to go out of town on vacation, there are a couple of things you can do to make your trip more enjoyable and carefree.

First, call ahead for reservations. Second, make arrangements with a relative or neighbor to keep an eye on your house while you're away. Give them your vacation address and phone number so they can reach you in an emergency.

Remember, too, Long Distance rates are lower on Sundays and weekdays after 6 p.m. And you save more than one-third when you call station-to-station.

ONE MINUTE OF COURTESY

It's been my experience that most folks in Cameron try to answer their phone calls promptly. But in the summertime so many are busy working or relaxing in the yard, it takes a little longer to get to the phone.

If you've ever just missed a call after running inside to answer the phone, you know how disappointing it is. Most folks can get to their telephones within a minute, even when they aren't in the house. One minute is about the time it takes for the phone to ring 10 times.

By waiting at least 10 rings before you hang up, you'll often save yourself the time and trouble of calling again, and your friends will certainly appreciate your courtesy and patience. So please remember to wait 10 rings — it takes just a minute.

Call by number. It's twice as fast.

Real Fishermen Like To Fish

By Vern Sanford

Honest - to - goodness fishermen really like to fish.

Every time we see a dyed - in - the - wool angler we are reminded of the two fishermen hwho were out on the lake bright and early one Sunday morning.

One fellow said to the other, "I feel guilty out here fishing on the Sabath when I oughta be attending church with the family."

His buddy's comment was, "Well my wife and I couldn't have gone anyway, 'cause she's at home sick in bed."

Which brings another thought. Why don't you take that gal along on your next fishing trip? There are no better anglers than women once they get the hang of things.

So, take the little woman with you next time. And I don't mean just for the car ride. Or simply to sit on the bank and swat flies.

I mean take her with you in the boat. Show her a good time. Teacher her how to fish.

She'll probably outfish you inside of six months, maybe sooner, but it will make her love the outdoors more. And believe you me, You'll get in more fishing trips yourself because she will want to go often. More important still it'll make a real pal of her.

But -- don't treat her as a servant. Don't ask her to do anything you wouldn't ask of a male fishing buddy. And don't baby her, either.

To you women, let me say this. Lots of times when the gal goes along she will just stroll along the bank doing nothing.

That's a mistake, little woman, 'cause if you do, you'll spend most of your time climbing over rocks and through brush to rescue "daddy's" lure. Or to retrieve his landing net, or to return his paddle.

If you stay by the car you'll get eaten by mosquitoes, or chased by a bull, or rained on.

Furthermore, if hubby doesn't catch anything, you'll have to listen all the way home to reasons why.

He will tell you the water was too high, too low, too clear or too muddy. Or too cold or too hot.

In the other hand, if papa does catch something you'll have to clean it and freeze it -- and later on thaw it and cook it -- and you missed the thrill of catching it.

So, gal, you might as well go along and enjoy the whole show, and be a pal while you're at it.

According to statistics there are 750,000 people in Texas who work 50 weeks a year so they can afford to go fishing the other two weeks.

Of this number, exactly 749,998 people arrive at their favorite fishing spots only to find the water too something or other for good fishing.

What about the other two persons?

Well, they go out, whether the weather is wet or dry, the day sunshiny or the night moonlit. And they catch fish!

How?

Next time you see a truly successful, old - time fisherman, just ask him how he does it.

Chances are his answer will be short and to the point -- "Just fish for 50 years."

And that may be true, for experience certainly helps.

So, if you're going to be a successful fisherman, better start right now.

That's why I wanted to direct this column to the people who don't fish, to the people who live with the people who do fish. To the wives of fishermen!

Isn't it about time somebody said a word or two about them?

So it is that we dedicate this column to the people whom fishermen marry -- to the wives of fishermen.

And to the fisherman husband we say -- "Take the wife with you on your next fishing trip ..... as a true fishing companion.

MATCH VALIANT if you can!

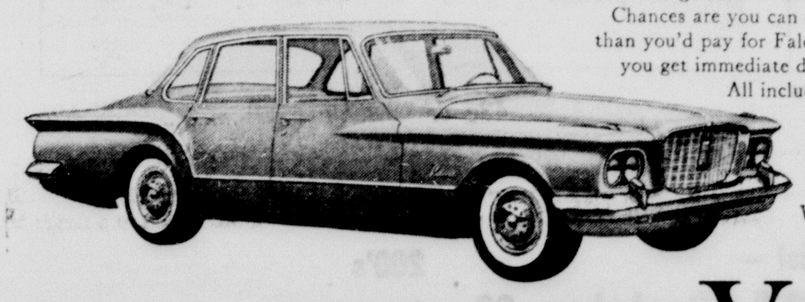
CHECK ECONOMY . . .	CHECK LOOKS . . .	CHECK SKEDADDLE . . .	CHECK ROOM . . .
Valiant beat the carburetors off both Falcon and Corvair in the Mobilgas Economy Run.	The New York Couture Group gave Valiant their Design Supremacy Award, said it was the best looking car in America.	Valiant walked off with the first seven places in the Daytona Trials. Corvair and Falcon? Still mumbling.	Valiant's got room for a well-fed family of six. Plenty of room for legs, hips, heads and hats. And look how the trunks stack up:
VALIANT.....27.29 MPG	VALIANT...nobody's kid brother	VALIANT....101 HP inclined six	VALIANT.....24.9 cu. ft.
CORVAIR.....27.03 MPG	CORVAIR...imitation foreign bug	CORVAIR.... 80 HP pancake six	CORVAIR.....11.3 cu. ft.
FALCON.....25.64 MPG	FALCON...everybody's kid sister	FALCON.... 90 HP standard six	FALCON.....23.7 cu. ft.



We're making Valiant awful easy to own these days. Chances are you can own one for not a penny more than you'd pay for Falcon or Corvair. On top of that you get immediate delivery. All models. All colors. All include our new Certified Car Care to keep it new longer. And remember, we need good used cars, like the one you're driving. Get the picture? Get Valiant, King of the compacts.
